

LEADERSHIP FORUMS

THE COMPANY YOU KEEP

What is the value of friendship? Just ask David C. Bentall. Over the past 30 years, David has invested time and energy into developing friendships that have helped him succeed in career, family, and health.

David has built an impressive resume over the years. He is a Harvard graduate and award winning author; real estate developer who helped build the multi-billion dollar family business, The Bentall Group; former president of Dominion Construction, whose projects include GM Place (now Rogers Arena); community leader who played a key role in Vancouver's bid for the 2010 Winter Olympics; and a competitive water skier, who won a gold medal at Nationals in men's 5 slalom in 2009.

How did David achieve all this success? He credits developing the right kind of friendships for playing a key part. Over the years, David has actively built impactful friendships with two men: Carson Pue, president of Arrow Leadership Ministries, and Bob Kuhn, prominent lawyer who has successfully argued cases before the Supreme Court of Canada.

In his presentation, David shares how friendships, when created with intent and nurtured by the investment of time, can strengthen marriages, enhance careers, refresh our spirits, and transform our lives. He will also share the role his faith has had in shaping his friendships.

Are you actively building friendships that will go the distance? In the weeks following the forum, there will be an opportunity to continue the conversation in a Discovery Group. Meet new friends, learn from their perspectives, share your experiences, and explore the value of faith with other like-minded professionals.

David is currently the president of Next Step Advisors where he works with Vancouver's most prominent business families, and teaches at the Sauder School of Business.
